Our Intentions and Your Agreement

The Front Yard Tree, and all of its content, is intended to support personal growth and the gradual unfolding of your potential. It is not offered as medical, therapeutic, or professional advice.

By becoming a member of The Front Yard Tree, you acknowledge and agree to these terms.

Consider

You are your own guide, responsible for tending to your well-being with care as you understand it.

The support we long for—whatever its form—is often only available when we're open to receiving it in ways more diverse than we've been taught to expect. Our habits can keep us closed off. And yet, it is only in this willingness to open more widely that we begin to discern what truly serves us... and what does not. It can feel like a paradox.

So, from the onset, it is important for each potential member of The Front Yard Tree consider this discernment as their responsibility. It is at the heart of what is being cultivated.

The Front Yard Tree is not meant to take us out of our lives or out of our community. Each of us as individuals are response-able to cultivating a life connected in rich and diverse ways to where we live. And over time the content that unfolds will reflect this in creative ways.

Please then consider The Front Yard Tree as a part of a larger effort that you are exploring in your life, and use it only the ways that work for you. Take what nourishes and/or challenges in a good way, and leave the rest.
